There probably isn't a single person who hasn't heard about the legendary Mowgli from Rudyard Kipling's famous work, The Jungle Book. Yet many folks have no idea that this book was inspired by a real-life story. Meet Dina Sanichar, or the Indian wolf-boy, a feral boy who lived in the 19th century and was raised by wolves—many believe that Dina was the real inspiration behind The Jungle Book.

Mowgli went through the village street in the dawn, sitting on the back of Rama, the great herd bull. The slaty-blue buffaloes, with their long, backward-sweeping horns and savage eyes, rose out their byres, one by one, and followed him, and Mowgli made it very clear to the children with him that he was the master.
